Welcome to the HearSound™ Family!

Thank You for Your QVC Purchase!

Quick Tips for a Great Start

Step 1: Fully Charge Your Soundball

Charge your Soundball for at least 8 hours before first use.
This ensures your Soundball performs at its best right from the start.

Step 2: Connect the Audio Cable from Your TV to the Transmitter

Your system includes two audio cable options, but you only need to use one.
   Optical Audio Cable: Recommended for the best sound quality.
-OR-   Remove the plastic caps from both ends of the digital optical audio cord before using.
   3.5mm Line-In Cable: An alternative audio connection option if needed.

Step 3: Power Your Devices

Your system includes two USB power adapters:
1. Use one adapter to charge your Soundball.
2. Use the second adapter to power the transmitter. However, if your TV has a USB port (common in TVs manufactured within the last 10 years), connect the transmitter directly to your TV's USB port using the included USB-C to USB-A cable. In this case, the second adapter can be saved for future use or to power an additional Soundball.

Step 4: Pair Your Soundball and Transmitter

1. Turn on both the Soundball and the transmitter.
   A blue light on each will indicate they are powered on. It's okay if the light blinks.
2. Check the Source on the transmitter.
   Look for the blue light over the connection type you're using (AUX, COAXIAL, or OPTICAL) on the front of the transmitter. If it's not correct, press the Source button to switch to the correct input.
3. Pairing Steps (Follow these steps in sequence):
   1. Press and hold the Pair button on the transmitter until the blue light starts blinking.
   2. Release the Pair button immediately.
   3. Then immediately press and hold the Tone button on the Soundball.
   4. Release the Tone button as soon as you hear a beep from the Soundball.

Both blue lights should blink, then turn solid within 4–5 seconds, indicating they are paired successfully.

Thank you for choosing HearSound!
